The ART of TRIMMING emblematically diſplayed.

During which perturbation of the intellectual faculties, a BARBER has leave given him, to account himſelf a great politician; and a CHILD, to imagine himſelf a man of genius and learning. Daily Courant, Oct. 2, 1733.

WHEN we firſt publiſhed in our Journal, about this time twelve-month, The art and myſtery of printing emblematically diſplayed, we did not accompany it with any conjectural explication; but choſe rather to ſubmit it to the judgment of the town, that we might hear the various conjectures of the ingenious, before we ſhould communicate thoſe of our own members. But we were ſoon convinced, that our conduct had been erroneous: for the falſe and malicious interpretations of our enemies, had made too deep an impreſſion upon the minds of ſome of our friends, to be intirely removed by our own authentick explications in two following Journals. To prevent therefore the like prejudice and prepoſſeſſion to our diſadvantage, I am ordered by our Society, to ſubjoin to the preſent emblematical picture, the interpretations of ſome of our moſt eminent members, in one or other of which, all the reſt acquieſced. In doing this, I ſhall leave out the ornamental and rhetorical parts of their ſpeeches; which, tho' of great uſe, as patterns for publick orations, yet would take up too much room in this Paper; and ſhall barely exhibit each opinion in as perſpicuous and conciſe a manner as poſſible, under the name of the perſon who delivered it.

The firſt who ſpoke on this occaſion was Dr. QUIBUS, to the following effect. —— From my little application to hieroglyphical repreſentations, I find the interpretation of them to be very uncertain, various, and contradictory: and therefore I ſhall not venture to give that which I may imagine the moſt probable; which I may juſtly apprehend will be overturned by the ſucceeding opinions of my more learned brethren. I ſhall only beg leave to obſerve, that as in hiſtorical pictures, one and the ſame interpretation from all ſpectators, ſhews them to be well done; ſo, on the contrary, in emblematical pieces, the multiplicity of explications is the greateſt commendation of the Artiſt. And, I believe, in this reſpect it will be found, that my friend the Sculptor has exerted the utmoſt powers of invention as happily, as he has certainly employed in the execution the fineſt touches of his hand. For tho' the drapery of theſe figures be modern, yet the diſpoſition and the attitudes are in the taſte of the ancients; and methinks I ſee the ſpirit of antiquity ſublimely expreſſed in every ſtroke. In which ſentiment every one muſt likewiſe be, who has ſeen, in the curious cabinet of my learned friend Mr. WALSINGHAM, the medals of ALEXANDER the great, ingraved by his PRAXITELES.

GYLES BLUNDERBUSS, Eſq; This picture ſeems very plainly to me to point out an affair, which, tho' of a private nature, having ſomething very extraordinary and remarkable in it, makes a good deal of noiſe already, and is likely to make more. The wig upon the block repreſents The laſt will and teſtament of the late great Dr. TINDAL, bequeathing to EUSTACE BUDGELL, Eſq; two thouſand one hundred pounds, that his GREAT TALENTS may ſerve his country. A Will, I think, is very properly adumbrated by a wig; becauſe the ſenſe of the one, and the hair of the other, proceed from the brain; and the former is made up in form, in an artificial manner, by the will-maker, as the latter by the wig-maker. And as the wig, which any perſon wears, is ſeldom made of his own hair; ſo it often happens, that a Will is not made of the perſons own head, under whoſe name it paſſes: but this cannot be the caſe here. —— That the Doctor is repreſented by a block, is not at all to his diſadvantage; ſince the greateſt men, after they are dead, are continually repreſented by ſtatues, and buſts, made of wood, as well as of braſs or marble. —— This block, head, and wig, are placed between two figures; which, by ſome part of their dreſs, appear plainly to be of two different ſexes, and to be very buſy in combing, powdering, and ſetting out the wig; which therefore I take to be deſigned for the honourable Mrs. PRISE, who wrote the will, and the honourable Mr. CURL, who firſt publiſhed it. —— The two next figures, towards the right-hand, ſtand for EUSTACE BUDGELL, Eſq; and the reverend Mr. NICHOLAS TINDAL. We are to ſuppoſe the former to have been comforting the latter under the diſappointment of his expectations from the Will of his uncle; and to have uſed the following words. 'Tho' the Doctor has for ſome time entertain'd a great value for me, whether on account of my perſonal merits, or for my works, I cannot ſay; and has, I believe, left me a HANDSOME LEGACY, you are not to reckon it as loſt: for you muſt know, your uncle was of opinion, there will be very quickly a change in the miniſtry, and from ſomething he ſaw in me, imagined, I ſhould be, as he was pleaſed to expreſs it, a GREAT MAN, and therefore has laid me under the ſtrongeſt obligations, when ſuch a change happens, to provide for you and your family'. In deference to the prediction of this great prophet, the painter has here repreſented the Squire in the habiliments of a great man, adorned with ſome of the chief enſigns of honour, which he will one day wear, when he is prime miniſter. But the rev. Mr. TINDAL, tho' in the habit of a clergyman, ſeems to be a perfect infidel, as to this prediction; and by the extending of his right hand, to upbraid the Squire with having 'inveigled an old man of four-ſcore to lend him ſuch great ſums upon his BOND, which he knew to be of no value; and with having received 1000 l. in Bank-bills, which he had ſolemnly denied'. The Squire appears a little gravell'd at this, and may be ſuppoſed to retort upon the Divine the ungeneroufneſs of his proceeding: 'That after he had given him his uncle's cloaths, houſhold-goods, and plate, appraiſed at 51 l, had delivered him up a bond given to his uncle, by himſelf and his father, for 150 l. and laſtly had tranſferred to him his uncle's bank-ſtock, to the value of 145 l.' (the receipt of which ſeems to be denoted by the bag of money in Mr. TINDAL's left hand) 'That after he himſelf had acknowledg'd Mr. BUDGELL had done generouſly by him; and had promiſed above forty times over, not in verbo ſacerdotis, but upon the word of a gentleman, that no ear ſhould ever hear him ſay one reflecting thing, either upon his deceas'd uncle, or upon Mr. BUDGELL', he ſhould, notwithſtanding all this, pretend to queſtion the validity of the Will, and repreſent as a forgery this dying demonſtration of the noble ſpirit, and uncommon generoſity of that great philoſopher; who had given ſo glorious an inſtance of the true ſpirit of an Old Whig, by expreſſing his great concern for the liberty of the preſs in general, and Mr. BUDGELL's Bee in particular, and that in the very laſt letter which that great man ever wrote with his own hand, juſt before he was going, as he himſelf expreſſes it, to the Lord knows where. —— The ſame gentleman is repreſented in another light, by the figure ſitting in the chair. We muſt now imagine him (according to his late letter to Sir R. W.) to have made his application to ſome ſturdy beggars, deſiring them 'to enable him to talk to that honourable gentleman, in the quality of a member of the Houſe of Commons, that he may give him ſome very particular reaſons to remember both a ſturdy beggar and a mad-man'. The four perſons, who ſtand about him, and by their garb and mien, appear to be very ſturdy beggars, ſeem to have given orders to the Barber, to ſhave his head cloſe, before they can give him a direct anſwer.

Mr. POLITICO. The perſon in the chair denotes king STANISLAUS, whom, in his old age, his ſon-in-law the young king of France, is trimming up, and adorning for royalty. The four who aſſiſt at this ceremony, ſtand for the four kings, of Spain, Sweden, Denmark, and Sardinia, who will probably join with France in placing STANISLAUS upon the throne. —— Or this part of the picture may ſignify the election itſelf, in which the marquis de Monti, the Regimentary PONIATOWSKI, the Chamberlain of Lithuania, the Marſhal of the court, and the great Treaſurer of the Crown, were very inſtrumental; who are all here diſtinguiſh'd by ſome badge of their reſpective offices. —— Or laſtly it may repreſent King STANISLAUS in his preſent retreat at Dantzick, where theſe five great perſons, who either accompanied, or followed him out of Poland, are his principal attendants. ——— At the other end ſtands his competitor, the Elector of Saxony, to whom the biſhop of Cracow ſeems to be giving his benediction with his right hand, while his left holds ſomething, which, were he not an eccleſiaſtic, one would be apt to take for a bag of money. The peruque on the block, denotes the crown of Poland, which the Czarina on one ſide, and the Emperor on the other, are preparing to place upon his head.

Mr. PAMPHLETEERO agréed with Mr. POLITICO as to the ſignification of the peruque, and of the figures on either ſide; but of all the reſt he gave a quite contrary interpretation. In his opinion, the Cardinal Primate was ſignified by the Clergyman, as pointing out King STANISLAUS, and giving him his benediction. And the groupe of figures at the other end repreſented the tranſactions at Dreſden, upon the arrival of the Chamberlain and Staroſt LINOWSKI, &c. with the Diploma, or act of election of King AUGUSTUS III.

THURSDAY, Oct. 18. His majeſty has been pleaſed by letters patent under the great ſeal, to grant unto Mark Frecker, and John Lawton, Eſqrs; in truſt for the poor of the pariſh of St. Margaret Weſtminſter, licence and authority to hold a hay-market in the Broadway, Weſtminſter, on mondays, wedneſdays, and fridays, in every week. C.

In order to let the world ſee what methods are taken to diſperſe the works of thoſe doting old Gentlewomen Walſingham and Osborne, the underwritten is a copy of a printed letter ſent by the comptroller of the general Poſt-office, to the poſt-maſters in the country.

General Poſt-Office, London, Oct. 9, 1733.

SIR,

I ſhall ſend you the enclоſed papers gratis, as oft as they come out, and deſire you will make them as publick as you can: If there be any coffee-houſes in your town, or within your delivery, where gentlemen reſort to read the news, pleaſe to ſend me the names of ſuch coffee-houſes, or the perſons who keep them, and I will furniſh them gratis with the ſame papers.

Hieroglyphicks, or figures of repreſentation, have been found by the antients to have had a better effect in opening the eyes of the publick, to let them ſee either their intereſt or ſlavery, than the fineſt words or ſpeeches; for which reaſon we hear there will be given away at the next election, great variety of prints, repreſenting Britons in miſery by Exciſe, ſome repreſented mad, ſome in priſon, and ſome in rags, but all in fetters, led by thoſe that would have enſlav'd them; only with this difference, that their leaders have golden fetters, and the others iron; with a label coming out of the mouths of the former, with theſe words, But mine are gold! L E.

Yeſterday the right hon. the lord mayor, accompany'd by ſeveral of the aldermen, and the ſheriffs of this city, waited on the right hon. the lord chancellor, when Sir Will. Billars, &c. was preſented. D P.

We hear that Tho. Bramſton, Eſq; will offer himſelf a candidate for the county of Eſſex. D P. D J.

Laſt tueſday at a board of the infirmary at Weſtminſter, Dr. Stuart and Dr. Waſey having declined ſerving the houſe as phyſicians, Dr. Wigan and Dr. Cotes very generouſly offer'd their ſervice, and were unanimouſly choſe in their room. L E.

Married, as we hear, from Caermarthenſhire, Hen. Middleton, Eſq; of Middleton-Hall, to Mrs. Elizabeth Price, a young gentlewoman of great beauty, and good fortune. D J.

Died yeſterday morning near old Palace-yard, Weſtminſter, —— Broome, Eſq; one of the moſt conſiderable dealers in pictures in England, worth upwards of 20,000 l. D J.

FRIDAY, Oct. 19. We are credibly inform'd, that a certain Engliſh gentleman, who is lately gone to Holland, has a commiſſion to engage the States-general to furniſh out 20 men of war, which are to join 30 Engliſh, and to ſail with all expedition to the Mediterranean.—— We hear likewiſe, that the French ſquadron which has been in the Baltick, is arrived at Dunkirk, and is to join 20 more of his moſt Chriſtian majeſty's fleet; and that they, with 25 of his catholick majeſty's, are to ſail towards Italy with all ſpeed. P.

On wedneſday in the afternoon the ſtatue of Britannia, which was plac'd on a ſtone pedeſtal in the front of the duke of Devonſhire's houſe, fell down and broke to pieces. It was accounted one of the fineſt ſtatues in England, and is ſaid to have coſt 3500 guineas in Italy. D A. —— I much queſtion the truth of this; and have heard, that it was made to reſemble the dutcheſs of Richmond in K. Charles II's time.

Married Tho. Jones Trye, of Hanham in Glouceſterſhire, Eſq; lately to Miſs Hare, an agreeable lady with 16,000 l. fortune. D P.

Died laſt wedneſday in his 65 year, at Chiſlehurſt in Kent, Sir Edw. Betenſon, Bart. who dying a batchelor, his title is become extinct. D A. —— He is ſucceeded by Capt. Edw. Betenſon, his couſin germain, of the foot-guards. D P. Oct. 20.

SATURDAY, Oct. 20. The nuptials between his highneſs the prince of Orange, and the princeſs royal, will be perform'd in a very grand and publick manner at the French chapel, adjoyning to the palace royal at S. James's, great preparations being made thereto, and yeſterday the workmen entirely ſtrip'd the chapel of the pulpit, and the pews, in order to erect ſeats and ſcaffolding for the reception of the ſeveral nobility and quality; and that part of the garden-wall will be taken down that is facing Marlborough-houſe, in order for a commodious paſſage for the proceſſion which will be on foot, from the palace of S. James's, through the gardens to the ſaid chapel, which will be ſolemniz'd in a very magnificent manner. C. D P. —— Yeſterday the lord chamberlain was at S. James's, and gave orders, that an apartment ſhould be fitted up for the reception of his highneſs the prince of Orange, next the princeſs royal's apartment. P.

On thurſday laſt an order was ſent from the admiralty-office, to the head commiſſioner of the gun-wharf, expreſly commanding him to make all things ready belonging to his office, for failing at an hour's warning. P.

On thurſday laſt his excellency M. Borck, envoy extraordinary from the king of Pruſſia, had his firſt audience of his royal highneſs the prince of Wales, the Duke, and the princeſſes, D P. —— We hear he is come to negotiate a marriage with his royal highneſs the prince of Wales, and his Pruſſian majeſty's youngeſt daughter. S J. L E.

One John Peto, a poor labouring man at Richmond, having compoſed a ſong in honour of the princeſs royal's intended nuptials with the prince of Orange, he preſented the ſame to her majeſty laſt wedneſday, when ſhe was croſſing the Thames at Hampton-Ferry, and ſung it with an audible voice in the ferry-boat; upon which her majeſty rewarded him with ſome gold. S J. L E. —— Her majeſty's royal bounty will make many poor men labour to be poets.

The mayor, bailiffs, and burgeſſes of Northampton met Oct. 4. and ordered a long addreſs, nemine contradicente, to be preſented to the hon. George Compton, Eſq; one of their repreſentatives, returning their thanks for his conduct in parliament. ——— At the ſame time 'twas order'd, nemine contradicente, That the thanks of this corporation be return'd to Sir Juſtinian Iſham, Bart. and Thomas Cartwright, Eſq; repreſentatives of this county, for their great and ſignal ſervices in parliament, and particularly for their brave and vigorous oppoſition to the pernicious bill brought into the houſe of commons laſt ſeſſion, for extending the laws of Exciſe. Upon which occaſion it was, with the univerſal conſent of this body, agreed to promote the ſucceſs of the ſaid two gentlemen at the next election for the county of Northampton, to the utmoſt of their power: And as an inſtance of the ſincerity of their high eſteem for theſe true and worthy friends to the intereſt of their country, 'twas with the ſame unanimity reſolv'd, that they be deſir'd to accept of the compliment of their names being enroll'd among the honorary freemen of this antient and loyal corporation. L E.

By letters from ſeveral cities and boroughs we hear, that ſeveral of the moſt conſiderable electors have reſolv'd to make choice of no perſons but ſuch as ſhall declare their inclination and intention, upon all occaſions that ſhall offer, to endeavour the repeal of the ſeptennial act. L E.

They write from Nottingham, that John Plumptree, Eſq; has declared himſelf a candidate for that town, in oppoſition to thoſe two worthy members who voted againſt the Exciſe ſcheme, and has treated the burgeſſes; ſince which there has been great mobbing by the Exciſe party, particularly on the 15th inſtant at night, a great number with torches and ſticks, join'd by two aldermen's ſons of that town, and ſeveral conſtables, committed the moſt violent outrages, viz. breaking of windows and knocking perſons down that would not give their ſhout as they did; and likewiſe beat and abus'd in a moſt violent manner, a gentleman of the town, for no other reaſon, than that he deſired they would take care not to fire his houſe and the reſt adjoining. L E.

On thurſday laſt a court was held at Bridewell, by the preſident and governors of that and Bethlehem hoſpitals, when they were pleaſed to agree with the preſent contractors of the new building for the bank of England, to erect a new building at the weſt end of Bethlehem hoſpital for incurables, to anſwer that lately built at the eaſt end. D A. —— This new building for incurables ought to be much larger.

MONDAY, Oct. 22. On thurſday the inſtruments containing the marriage-contract between the princeſs royal and the prince of Orange, were ſigned at Hampton-court on the part of his majeſty and the ſaid prince. C, &c. —— On ſaturday night the prince's baggage was landed. P.

We are credibly informed, that a ſquadron of men of war, conſiſting of twelve ſhips of the line, will ſhortly be put in commiſſion, to ſail for the Mediterranean, in order to prevent any forces that may attempt to land, or give any diſturbance to the emperor's dominions in Italy. C.

Dover, Oct. 19. Yeſterday landed here his grace the duke of Queensborough, his dutcheſs and ſon, and ſet out for London. P. — Their coming to London will make ſeveral good articles more.

Yeſterday, between 11 and 12, the arch that was lately turned for the new gate in Biſhopſgate-ſtreet, fell entirely in. Dr. Turner's chariot and a hackney coach juſt coming, and hearing the crack, the former drove haſtily through, and the latter backing, both happily eſcaped hurt. Workmen were immediately ſent for to remove the rubbiſh, for fear any people might be under the ruins. 'Tis very obſervable, that one of the ſurveyors of the work, viewing the ſaid ſtructure on ſaturday night, laid a wager of a 10 s. bowl of punch, that 'twould not ſtand till yeſterday noon. D A.

Died on friday Mrs. Calverley, wife of Mr. Calverley, who keeps the famous boarding-ſchool in Queen's ſquare, Ormond-ſtreet. D P. ——— On ſaturday morning Mrs. Calverling, &c. C.

TUESDAY, Oct. 23. On ſunday the rev. Dr. Littleton preached before their majeſties, his royal highneſs the prince, &c. C. —— Yeſterday being the anniverſary of the birth-day of her royal highneſs the princeſs royal, who then enter'd into her 25th year; there was a ſplendid appearance of the nobility and gentry at Hampton-Court, C. &c. —— At the hunting on ſaturday laſt, the prince of Wales had like to have been unhors'd by a country fellow, who rode furiouſly againſt his royal highneſs. D P.

We hear that his grace the duke of Devonſhire has declared his intention of not rebuilding his houſe lately burnt down, but deſigns to let the ground and gardens to builders, in order to make a fine row of houſes, anſwerable to that in Berkeley-ſtreet; and that his grace will build a houſe elſewhere. D J. — This is a certain way for his grace to repair his great loſs.

We hear that the nuptials between his highneſs the prince of Orange, and the princeſs royal will be ſolemnized on the 4th of November. W E. —— The day is not yet fix'd for the marriage of the princeſs royal with the prince of Orange, but it had been agreed on, that the proceſſion to the French chapel (where the ceremony is to be perform'd) ſhall be made from his majeſty's privy chamber in St. James's houſe round the garden, and ſo to the door of the ſaid chapel, thro' a ſcaffolding cover'd over, which is to contain about 2000 perſons, for the admittance of whom tickets will be deliver'd by his grace the lord chamberlain. The proceſſion is to begin at ſix in the evening exactly, and to be made by the light of flambeaux. —— After the ceremony, their highneſſes are to ſup in publick, in a moſt magnificent manner. Eighteen peers daughters are to be ſummoned to attend the ſolemnity. S J. L E.

Yeſterday the publiſher of a pamphlet call'd, A word to the freeholders, &c. was taken in cuſtody, with ſeveral others, and the books ſeized; and likewiſe the publiſher of Fogg's journal, in which paper of ſaturday ſev'nnight was a quotation from the ſaid pamphlet. L E.

Norwich, Oct. 20. On the 12th inſtant Will. Wodehouſe, Eſq; was at the town of Hempnall in Norfolk, where he was met by a very handſome train of coaches, and a great number of gentlemen, clergy, and freeholders on horſeback, and welcomed in with muſick, firing of guns, and the loudeſt acclamations of the people; the conſtant cry was Bacon and Wodehouſe. P.

On ſunday night the corpſe of the late celebrated Mr. Bullock was carried to Hampſtead to be interred, when a great diſpute aroſe in the church-porch, between the undertaker's bearers, and thoſe of the pariſh of Hampſtead; inſomuch, that they came to blows, and ended with bloody noſes. The country bearers got the maſtery, and made the undertaker pay them their dues. P. — This was a trage-comedy at the funeral of an actor.

On ſaturday laſt 559,796 yards of linnen were entered at the cuſtom-houſe from Dublin. D J.

We hear from Dover, that Capt. Pickering of the Duke ſloop, going out on a cruze, order'd his windows to be illuminated on his majeſty's coronation night; which being done, his windows were broke, and a piſtol ball fired at his houſe, and ſeveral entered, one of which paſſed under the arm of a ſervant as ſhe was attending the candles. The perſons guilty of ſo vile an action are not yet diſcovered. C. —— I hope this ſtory is more ſtrange than true: a piſtol ball fired, and ſeveral entered. The D A. ſays a piſtol fir'd, ſome of the balls of which enter'd. I think it plain, that a blunderbuſs was employed on this occaſion.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 24. We hear the prince of Orange intends to come up the river to Greenwich in one of the yatchs; at which place the king's barges are to attend, to bring him to Tower-wharf, where he is to be received by one of the ſtate coaches to convey him to court. C. —— To Somerſet houſe. D J.

From the PEGASUS in Grub-ſtreet.

To the right honourable the LORD MAYOR.

My Lord, as on this day laſt year betimes
I roſe, to celebrate your fame in rhimes;
The ſun, which through my garret-window ſhone,
Two faces ſometimes ſhew'd, and ſometimes none.
Surpriz'd, as in the dark, at this ſtrange ſight,
A ſage philoſopher thus gave me light:
Through dusky clouds obſcure, or ſmoaked glaſs,
The radiant beams directly cannot paſs;
But oft reflected and refracted fly,
Forming ſtrange viſions to the wond'ring eye:
E'en this diſorder'd, of itſelf alone,
An object double ſees, when 'tis but one.
Searching the caſe, I found, with great ſurprize,
Both medium falſe, and diſcompos'd my eyes.
The like deception to prevent this year,
In Heliconian liquor, freſh, and clear,
By Grub-ſtreet pump in copious ſtreams ſupply'd,
My face I waſh'd; and let my caſement wide.
PHOEBUS in clouds aroſe, but long e'er noon,
Diſpell'd them all, and moſt ſerenely ſhone:
Increas'd his ſplendor to the laſt extream,
And, ſtrange! ſeem'd brighteſt with his ſetting beam.
Warm'd by his beams, your lordſhip's emblem, now
In numerous verſe my wit begins to flow;
And begs your leave, to ſhew in tuneful lays,
By two familiar images, your praiſe.
In ſome fam'd printing-houſe, on caſes ſpred
A font of letters lyes, half tin, half lead,
With anti-mony mix'd, (which wretched oar,
CONUNDRUM ſays, makes half the printers poor:)
Types of one kind, like parties of one feather,
Diſpos'd in ſeparate boxes, herd together.
If theſe in words ſome blunderer would compoſe,
Diſcordant types he cloſe at random throws:
Nor ſenſe, nor ſound is found in any three;
To W he adds an H and T.
An artiſt knows, that H will never ſit;
Diſcards it, claps in I, and makes it WIT.
Where painted wig in niceſt curls diſplay'd,
Shews beards to be deſtroy'd, and perruques made,
Wights of all ſorts each ſaturday repair,
To fit themſelves for next day's ſleep —— or pray'r.
With ruddy face the jolly Tory ſhines;
The Whig's has paler hue, and deeper lines.
At their firſt entrance ſtrange diſputes are heard:
One blames the hue of t'others face and beard:
To wear your hair ſo ſhort is very wrong:
'Tis infinitely worſe that your's ſo long:
Black wig and eye-brows brown can ne'er be right:
Black brows look odder much with perruque light.
Firſt come, firſt ſerv'd, in turn both great and ſmall,
Th' impartial operator trims them all.
Whilſt ſome beneath the ſhining razor ſit,
The reſt intent on politics, or wit,
Are fir'd with zeal, as Fog or Craftſman guides,
Or at the Grub-ſtreet Journal ſhake their ſides.
If hard expreſſions ſome ſmall doubts excite,
He juſt diſtinctions makes, and ſets them right.
Now ſhav'd, and powder'd, ſmooth alike, and gay,
All cauſes of diſſention took away;
They part like friends, and with one voice declare
'Gainſt all Exciſe, but that of beards, or hair.

FRIDAY, Oct. 19. —— Paris, Oct. 24. The count de Bell-iſle, has taken poſſeſſion of Lorrain, with 4 Battallions, 6 ſquadrons of troops, and 4 pieces of cannon. D A. —— The marquis de Caſtelhar died on the 19th inſtant. C. &c.

Extract of a letter from Cadiz. OCT. 6. N. S. On the 15th of July the Flota was loſt on the coaſt of Cuba, about 40 leagues from the Havanna. Two ſhips eſcaped: the treaſure was ſaved, and part of the other effects. P. D J.

Rome. Sept. 12. The murthers that have been committed this year, in the city and neighbourhood, amount to 1000, and in the eccleſiaſtical ſtate, to 6000. D J.

SATURDAY, Oct. 20. —— Warſaw, Oct. 12. N. S. The Ruſſians paſſed the Viſtula with ſome ſmall loſs, entered the city, and plundered the palaces of the grandees that were retired to Dantzick. The regimentary retired with his troops towards Cracow, in order to draw the Ruſſians that way, and to hinder them from crowning the ſecond king, hoping to ſucceed therein, ſince Great-Poland is entirely attached to king Staniſlaus. C. P.

MONDAY, Oct. 22, —— Paris, Oct. 28. N. S. The trenches before Fort Kehl were opened in the night between the 19th and 20th, and at 4 in the afternoon they began to batter the place. P.

TUESDAY, Oct. 23. —— Petersburg, Oct. 3. N. S. We have received certain advices from Conſtantinople, importing that the grand ſeignior has given the moſt poſitive aſſurances, that he will not concern himſelf directly or indirectly with the affairs of Poland. C. —— Vienna, Oct. 14. A courier arriv'd from Mr. Tahlman at Conſtantinople, has brought advice, that notwithſtanding the repeated aſſurances given by the porte to the Ruſſian court, not to take any part in the diſtractions of Poland, yet he thought thoſe aſſurances were not to be relied on, and that his imperial majeſty ought to put himſelf on his guard as ſoon as poſſible. D A.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 24. —— Dantzick, Oct. 20. N. S. We are told, that the Ruſſian general Leſſe had, after all the greateſt ſhare in the choice of the Elector of Saxony; for ſome of the malcontents were for prince Wieſnowieski, others for prince Radzivil to be king, which occaſion'd great wrangling and confuſion: but general Leſſe being informed of it, he marched directly to Praage, and acquainted them, that by his orders he could not ſuffer any one to be proclaimed but the Elector of Saxony. This declaration ſtunned many of the party, ſo that they were marching off the ground; but the general ordered them to be brought back, and obliged them to attend the election, telling them, they had begun, and they ſhould make an end. It is added, that there were not above 80 Poliſh and Lithuanian Grandees and gentlemen preſent at that choice; but that about 4000 peaſants were carried to the field of election in waggons, to vote as gentlemen. P.

All People, who labour under the following Infirmities, may find Benefit in applying to

WILLIAM HENDERSON,

WHO, by the Bleſſing of God, cures Cancers, Kings-Evils, Wens, polypus, and Excreſcences of the Fleſh of any Kind upon any part of the human Body. He performs his Cures without cutting or ſpilling of Blood; takes away the Roots though ever ſo ſmall and fibrous, and recovers the parts to ſound Fleſh.

He hath performed many great Cures, not only in America, but ſince his Arrival in London, (which was in December laſt) particularly,

1. Capt. George Pitt of a Fleſh-Wen, which he had 14 Years behind his Ankle, the Root whereof extended to the Bone; who may be apply'd to at the Jeruſalem Coffee-Houſe in Exchange-Alley for Information. Alſo, 2. The Daughter of Oliver Hallowell, a Child of nine Months old, of an Excreſcence on its Mouth as large as a Mutton-Kidney, which he hath taken away, and reſtored its Mouth to its natural Form. The Child may he ſeen in Token-houſe Yard, near Lothbury. 3. Henry Spratley, in Field-Lane, Holborn, of a large polypus on his Noſe. He hath cured others ſince his Arrival, and hath ſeveral now under Cure.

He alſo cureth the Ague and Fever without the Bark; as alſo the Gout, where old Age, Decrepidneſs and Chalks do not prevent: And giveth Eaſe to ſuch as are not curable.

N. B. He giveth Advice in phyſick gratis; takes no Fees from the poor, but the rich pay according to their Abilities; and, if they pleaſe, may agree before-hand: If no Cure is performed, no pay is required.

He gives Attendance at his Lodgings, in Falcon-Court, Lothbury, every Morning till twelve a Clock.
